

Ecoturismo—Una nueva tendencia de vacaciones

El ecoturismo is a form of tourism in which the desire to visit pristine natural environments and experience indigenous cultures often is cited as the primary purpose of the trip.

You have been hired as a tour guide! Plan a trip to a country (or two!) to raise awareness of the natural beauty and ecological challenges the country faces.

Select from these issues as a focus:

- El calentamiento global/cambio climático
- La extinción de los animales
- La contaminación del aire
- La contaminación del agua
- La deforestación
- El reciclaje

Before you can plan and design your tour, you'll have to do some research.

You'll be using our subscription databases. (The username and password to access these from home is chcowboys)

- ★ Global Issues in Context (for information about the issues)
- ★ CultureGrams (for information about the country)
- ★ You'll search for additional images with Creative Commons licenses by using this:
<https://search.creativecommons.org/>

Navigate to databases: <http://www.canyonhighlibrary.com/databases.html>

Take formal Cornell-style notes on the information you find, including the MLA 8 citations of the resources you use. Information to locate (a sample list-expand as needed):

*Natural geological features *Indigenous cultures *Ecological challenges

Once your research is complete, you'll start building your site using Google sites.

- ★ You'll present your information in a website designed to attract people to your tour.
- ★ Your information must be presented en Español using the vocabulary from La naturaleza 4.
- ★ You'll document your sources in an MLA 8 formatted Works Cited page (to be turned in separately)

List of items to be graded:

Cornell Notes (demonstrating research), Website (use of Spanish vocabulary), Works Cited
